cattle sale-yards, and this power was given, subject to the control and approval of the Executive Council.

Mr. W. DAVIES said provision for that was made in the C. O. N. I. and not in the Crown.

Mr. GARRETT hoped the Crown would keep the title of the land in their own hands, in case of any failure on the part of the Corporation to carry out the object for which they were authorized to acquire the land.

Mr. C. C. O'CONNOR thought that it was an absurd proposition that the fee simple of the land should be in the Council, but that the Council should not have power to sell and the debentures issued to pay for the property were paid.

Mr. FITZPATRICK said he was opposed to the bill altogether. This power of taking lands for public purposes was a very important matter, and he thought it should be vested in the Legislature, and not in the Council. If the land were required for any public purpose, it ought to be resumed on the authority of the Executive Government, and not on the authority of the Corporation.

The bill was read the second time, and the House went into committee to consider the clauses of the bill in detail. The preamble was postponed.

Clause 1—Power to acquire land for public purposes was passed.

Clause 2—Power to Council to take or acquire lands for cattle race-yards was proposed.

Mr. C. C. O'CONNOR said that Mr. J. P. FALKES, the clerk in the 12th, referring to the area in acres of the land, was filled with the word "sixty."

Clause 2—"Power to Council to take or acquire lands for cattle race-yards."

Mr. GARRETT moved the addition to the clause of certain words providing that the Council shall not exercise the power of selling the land without the sanction of the Government.

Mr. O'CONNOR thought that the words so proposed to be added were altogether unnecessary. If the Corporation had for the land, he thought they should have the right to

MR. GARRIETT explained that the words were merely added in order to make the clause uniform. The power of acquiring the land could not be exercised without the consent of the Board of Governor and Executive Council, and he proposed that the words be struck out of the Corpora with regard to the sale of the land.

The question was then put, that the words proposed to be added at that part of the bill, were agreed to.

The remaining clauses of the bill, including the schedule and preamble, were agreed to.

The House having resolved, the bill was reported with amendments.

SIR HENRY PARKES moved the adoption of the report, which was carried.

EAST SYDNEY ELECTION.

MR. SPEAKER announced that having issued a writ for the election of a member of the Legislative Assembly to represent the district of East Sydney, the seat for which had been rendered vacant by the resignation of Mr. Alexander Stuart, the writ had just been returned and endorsed by the returning-officer, declaring that Dr. Arthur Reeswick had been duly elected to the vacant seat. (Loud cheers.)

FINANCIAL DEBATE.

The House having resolved itself into a Committee of Ways and Means, the adjourned debate on the Treasurer's financial statement was resumed by Mr. Towner, who said that the statement had been completely correct, although he regretted that the Treasury had not been able to make a deduction of between the revenue and expenditure for the year, he was not one of those who deplored of the prospects of the country. He was not one of those who thought that the country was in a position to fully bear whatever burdens its representatives in Parliament might deem it necessary to impose. Although he might take exception to the manner in which the Treasury had proceeded to make the statement, he did not think that the public creditor had any cause for alarm in consequence of the deficit. The Treasurer had been very candid in his statement, and he would be able to offer the latest account, but he (Mr. Colley) would be able to show that the deficit was a mistake. The demand for land had very considerably diminished during the past two years, and he was not at all disposed to think that there would be that new or increasing demand. It would have been paid for the same, and partly also to the increased upset price.

all to the fact that money was not so easily obtained now as formerly. He must certainly take exception to the Treasurer's expression of opinion that the falling off in the land sales, so far as it was attributable to the increased cost of money, was a thing which might have been thought of by the committee a long time ago, when that action was taken. The late Government, in raising the upset price of land from 25c. to 25s. per acre, had had a most wholesome and salutary effect on the land system of the colony. (Hear, hear.) The action of the late Government in raising the price of land to 25s. per acre, was a thing which the Government of the day should have been expected to do. It had taken place in 1854, and had taken place in a time when it was generally expected that future land purchases might therefore be expected to be of a more free and legitimate character. He thought that many persons who had expended thousands of pounds in the purchase of land under the auction system would be paid if they could have their purchases revoked, and would rather have the purchase money in their pockets than hold the lands so purchased. He found that the total decrease in the revenue of the country as derived from land sales, amounted to 2424,945. Now as against this Hon. members would observe that the Treasurer in accordance with the practice that has prevailed in speaking of the probable expenditure in respect to the votes of 1873, had written off 250,000 for services re-mony to be required. These services were presumably of a permanent character, for public works. This $350,000 became set off against the $142,000. This left still a balance of $208,000 to be provided for. Hon. member would observe that there was an actual deficit of $200,000, while the Treasurer proposed to provide for by setting against the surplus of the Consolidated Revenue Fund. But as the Colonial Treasurer in February last included in the surplus revenue estimate all such services as he thought could fairly be set off against the surplus, he was unable to see how the Treasury could use any of this surplus to the extinction of this deficit for 1879. By far a larger sum than $200,000 had arisen from ordinary sources of taxation, and he thought it would have been more in accordance with his policy if the Treasurer had not proposed to take this from the surplus revenue. Could this debt be accounted for in any other way than by the falling off in the land sales? But the debt had arisen from the following items of annual revenue running short:—Taxation, 261,343; duty on spirits distilled in the country, £2,204; interest on time conditionally purchased, £7,685; pastoral occupation, £28,535; railway revenue, £118,540; Mint receipts, £214 under five other sub-heads, £12,541; total, £235,955. With regard to this surplus the Government should have pursued a very different policy. Instead of taking entire sums for large public works, which could only be expended during a series of years, it would have been better to have taken annual votes, and meet the daily demands of the country for public works, which are now postponed indefinitely.

and the money for which is perhaps now locked up. The Government were not to be blamed for keeping the estimate as low as possible, keeping in view the requirements of the country. Hon. members representing country constituencies were urging upon the Government the necessity for improvements in their part of the country, and the country constituencies would be sorry to think that the Government had adopted the course they had adopted with regard to the appropriation of this surplus. The Treasurer also in his statement in February of this year laid down this position, that no portion of the surplus should be drawn upon to make good the deficiency in current revenue without the consent of Parliament. That was laying down a rule of Parliament which the Treasurer should in no wise transgress. [Interruption, and cheers from outside the building.]

NEW MEMBER.

On the motion of Sir HENRY PARKES, the Chairman left the chair, accepted applause, and obtained leave.

Dr. Arthur Renwick then entered the Chamber, introduced by Mr. J. Sutherland and Mr. J. Davies. The appearance of the hon. gentleman was the signal for loud and continued cheering. Dr. Renwick having been sworn in by the Speaker, signed the roll, and took his seat as one of the members for East Sydney.

The House again resolved itself into Committee of Ways and Means, and

Mr. COHEN continued: He considered that Parliament should be asked specifically to allow payments which it had otherwise sanctioned to be paid out of the surplus; but he thought the Treasurer was guilty of some inconsistency in the way in which he was acting. The deficiency, he would admit, was by no means to be attributed to the present Administration brought before the House last your night fairly have been anticipated, but he did not think that the appropriation of £100,000 for Exhibition purposes without the sanction of Parliament—for Parliament could not now be asked to approve it—was justifiable. With regard to the expenditure for public works the Treasurer had taken great credit to himself. Let them see what it amounted when spread over a series of years. The Treasurer had said—“in 1877, that is the year previous to the commencement of a rapid increase of population, the Government expended for public works our 1930 schedule, the amount of the expenditure authorized was $250,034, being equal to 51.10 per cent. of the revenue. In 1872 the expenditure authorized was $330,385, or 51.14 per cent. of the revenue of the year. In 1873 the expenditure authorized was $461,160, or 51.8 per cent. In 1874 the authorized expenditure was $571,812, or 51.6 per cent. In 1875 it was $650,960, or 51.6 per cent. In 1876, $1,048,306, or 52.0 per cent. In 1877, $1,444,430, or 52.5 per cent. In 1878, $1,377,135, or 52.7 per cent. In 1879, $1,444,430, or 52.7 per cent.; and proposed for

"$2,000, $80, 30 of $22,000, 1880, 1,881,803, or 218 10s. 2d. per cent." This was a pleasant way of placing the position before the country, but in all fairness to his hon. friend should have pointed out what the expenditure was on the total public works proposed. If he had done that he would have had to add to that $24 2s. 7d. per cent., the public works expenditure proposed out of the Consolidated Revenue, and they would find that their proposals were from £50 to £55 per cent. The Government were accordingly unable to supply the necessary representative requirements of

LAST SYDNEY ELECTION.

A candidate for the representation of the district of the Legislative Assembly, which had reason of the resignation of Mr. Alexander accepted the position of Agent-General, day. Mr. Day, the Returning-officer, was in Hyde Park, shortly before 8 o'clock and lost no time in placing his officers upon precise ground as to the duties of the voters, both in regard to obtaining tickets and balloting commencing immediately after the 8, 8, and proceeded with vigour until a stream of electors became considerably continued so until the dinner hour, when all force. Several attempts at persocation three cases the delinquents were arrested the lock-up, a course of procedure which unlimited satisfaction to those who were the election conducted on equitable grounds, the quotations at issue were of great interest them in the proceedings was been the case for some time, nothing as evidenced on either side, a crowd of persons congregated in the vicinity that the political atmosphere surrounding it excited more harmful to the feelings than this there was abundance of evidence of every kind to the electorate that during day there was nothing like disorder, and they were plentiful, there was nothing like the "Cabs with drivers" and "Independent" to "vote for Toth," being driven about in every direction, and outside of electors at the hustings, and committees of the electors for the election made. It was stated that many a supporter's had a ride at his opponent's expense of feeling prevailed, and the support to their doing so. Dr. Kenwick's to contract effect which free rides the voters' minds, published a number of cartoons, representing Lord and and ban fraternising with Baccus, who was of "swaney," squeezing the juice of the bell by his reverent companion, till to say what effect the result of the first wide-spread opinion prevailed among the excessive activity of Mr. Tooth's services of two hours, and the appearance of him to the public, and the importance to that gentlemanly name would appear as all. The names of the other two candidates and Mr. Tolson, and the result of the vote, it was only for the purpose of notices of the chances of either of the elected. Persons who were said to be extraordinary possibilities being held forth although Mr. Tooth might had support of the Roman Catholic Revuek would have been the members of the Episcopal Church generally, church, and of the various Protestant bitorate, as well as that of a large number bodies. They thought Mr. Tooth could be elected. The result of the balloting press was a shower one, for Dr. Kenwick city which might well be the envy of any Sub-Inspector. Another body had been in command of a very large corps of a reserve force available in the event of either party becoming victorious. At the time announced for the declaration drew near, the crowd increased in 7000. It became known that the Returner retained the result of the election, and although it was advertised that lared at 6 o'clock, the crowd called loudly believe of its purpose. A few minutes of time that gentlemen who had been there as all the candidates were present, were evidently exceedingly desirous of of the election, he would not wait until known. The voting, he said, had finished who was received with the most marked favour, said that one of the most important victories ever accomplished in the accomplished that day. It was very true that he or Mr. Toth, he said, had won it, but the fact that the principles announced were so dear to the hearts of so the most vital importance. He repeated thanks for their part in the present high position. A great responsibility him by their votes, but it would be pressed home to him, that he must accept his life-to discharge it efficiently, and add to the country. One thing he would edicted at once, and that was a proper body. Mr. Toth, he said, had done nothing of what was done on his behalf could assure them that the numbers of who occurred, and citizens who had with tears in their eyes, declaring that of their votes, were very great ad inquisitors in his eyes, and should not by where all men were united in the forests, and were conducive to the real and rising country. was received with loud applause, and returning his sincere thanks to the some that he had recorded in his favour, he did that failed, that he had not succeeded. He expressed his intense appreciation of the manner in which he had voted. He hoped that he could have votes if he had asked for them in time and shown him that he had considerable ideas and that he had a very strong opinion in the principles which he appeared considered the number of votes cast, and that in the circumstances, his suggestions a very large majority would stand. The principles which he had not doubt because he had not been before. He thanked them for the assistance for the labour which they gave which he hoped to see some day to the ALEXANDER DOWIE, who was received laughter and some howls, said that he there was no person present who would was a best man. (Clear, ha!) He would British best singer! He would sing at his own hearing. He was beaten, but no antagonism which it might create, he was a question of his opinion, and he would be the best man, he would have emotion. (Loud laughter, and "Oh, H.") He would tell them why. ("Your victory!") The victory was gained by aid of beer and treacherous never felt afraid to face a foe. He had seen the people of Sydney and had been beaten but not disgraced, for had not a single vote by false representations. He would never go up again, if not part of this great city. ("The day we are not stand before the electors again, and not be less than to fear by the howls of the electors, as he would stand before them and the last thing. He could not but that such tactics had been employed, very that other side had been exposed, and thoroughly honest electors, and the vilest influences had been brought to receive with laughter. minority will see that obstruction and obstructive tactics will not commend them to public approval. The Government, too, will feel itself refreshed and reinvigorated, and will proceed with renewed confidence, and more reassured step.

Such an expression of opinion as was given yesterday, would not have been given on the same subject a few years ago. But there is no mistaking the fact that public opinion has matured. The National system has grown in general favour, and the idea of unsectarian teaching is increasingly popular. Something of course is due to the strong reaction against more reassured step.

ecclesiastical domination, which has been proved by recent declamations. But even that has been more the cause of the manifesto than of the development of public opinion. The opinion has been working for a long time, and already for years past. What has happened has been much convinced and converted people, as led to the declaration of their conversion.

We cannot but be aware that this prevalence of the public mind will fill with pain and apprehension many excellent and sincerely religious people, who think that this abandonment of Denominational School means an abandonment of religion. Let us cheer them, take courage, and have more faith. There is nothing in this movement which is irreligious. On the contrary, it is precisely that children of all sects should be brought up together, so that they may understand and appreciate each other better, and not hate each other on account of their theological opinions, that is true charity and true religion. Let us not suffer by little and by little to become like the old school, which is learning to like and to hate by little and by little in the scriptural teaching. The Public school will be found in no way antagonistic to more special and distinctly to Crown.

There is, undoubtedly, in the temper of the public mind, something of a protest against ecclesiastical domination. But this is not in any way an irreligious tendency. In matters civil, few men like to govern themselves. If, unsummoned, tempted by the abuse of power, the clerical class overstrain their influence, the reaction is not against religion which better observes the cause of truth than religion that a hypocritical acquiescence would have come. The clergy are most effective when they are in their right sphere; but when they attempt to wield spiritual force in order to achieve political results, they degrade their high function and imperil their legitimate influence. There is more danger of a false religion than of a misuse of spiritual prerogatives for secular purposes than there is in a sincere rebellion against such imperious tyrannies.

Ministers answered questions put by Mr. Danga, Mr. Mankar, Mr. Johnston, Mr. M. C. Bannan, Mr.

One of the distinctive features of the Public Instruction Bill is the proposal that the State knowledge beyond primary education shall establish High schools. The propriety and expediency of making this movement in advance was endorsed by the Assembly with a unanimous vote. Mr. Winkey's motion in March, 1878. The resolution was in some measure an invitation to the Executive Government; and the Government of the day, Mr. Fitzpatrick being its spokesman, accepted it without cavil or delay.

The bill itself is so framed as to leave no room for misapprehension, when the present Ministry and Legislature are concerned, as to the authority of the Ministerial Office, and the provisions in the present bill which refer to the matter may be regarded as an application submitted to the Legislature for more precise instructions and more formal authority. It is apparently the desire of the present Government that any action it may take in the establishment of High schools or Grammar schools,

Mr. HENRY PETERS moved that the House at

...proposed amendments to the scheme were previously considered by the House. I had no intention of taking the House by surprise, and as I have said, I was such as to justify talking for the mere purpose of staving off time. When the motion was taken, 100 members, who voted against the scheme, were almost identical with the 100 members who voted against the bill as a whole on the second reading. On the other hand, there were some hon. members whose speeches was to furnish a basis for the measure, but their votes were not given in favour of the rejection. And now it seems to me that which may be supported in principle and projects which are good should stand by themselves, must be supported on their own merits, and not be supported as they have been condemned by authority.

In such circumstances should point to the fact that the Government had no right to add private interests in Sydney, neither would it be in other places where there was a concentration of population to give the foundation for the enterprise.

It could be observed that competition between private people is not prohibited by the State. No one who opens a school is guaranteed by the State against the opening of another school in his neighbourhood who may also possess of greater resources than enterprises of this sort are started in the absence of a liability to competition. calves, Denzilings; and small drafts for Messrs. Campbell and Co.; also, in Adelaide market, through our agent—100 head of bullocks for Messrs. Robertson, Mothers, and Finlayson; Bulloo River; and 46 bullocks for Messrs. Pollock and Co., Melbourne.

At Sydney—There was a good supply yarded—viz. 150—but no sale took place. The rates were steeper than usual, and much higher prices were offered than at last week's sale. We sold 14 head at £8-6 per head in advance of last week's rates. We sold 14 head at £7-10 per head in advance of last week's rates.

At H. G. Grass, Little River.

At Sheep.—A full supply to hand—viz. 16,297; viz., as only half of them were suitable for the trade, the sales for such sheep were very small. At last week's sale we sold 100 head at £10-0 per head in advance of last week's rates.

Lamb.—5000 graded, chiefly second-class and inferior wethers; few being pure prime quality. Prices for best described as follows:

about equal to last week's offerings. We quote—Best venny dull of sale at slightly reduced prices. We quote—Best head to 7 and extra higher—seconds, 56 cts to 6 cts; others, a few to 70 cts for Messrs. Ritchie, Brothers, Giorie Park; 10
H. W. J. Charles Roschke; 20 for Mr. M. Loomis, Glouceston. Prices ranging up to 85.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

MELBOURNE, VICTORIA.

Gibson and Co. report: 1844 cattle forward, and prices advanced 30s per head; best pens of bullocks brought up to £12, about 200 Buckley's Marsh bullocks, averaging 60 lb., about penned, and the market is unaltered; prime mutton others brought to bed. We sold 2000.

 Electro-silver and gold. We sold 1850 cattle penned, which was the best of the lot. The rest of the week's. Prime quality are made, and in preference to the rest of the week's. Prime quality are better, and others are unchanged. 21,000 sheep penned.
 There is no alteration in values.
 We sold 1800 cattle penned, and 1800 cattle varied, and we have advanced 200. We sold 2500 to the Leach and 21,000 sheep yarded, and prices are about 60 per cent.
 We have sold 2000 of Electro-silver wire—Brodley, Newton.
